When you get to see the video you'll see that while Leader still has his shades on, his real personality does come through.

I can't say I blame him. 13 days of the unknown: New state, New vehicle, fear, discomfort, etc, have finally shown signs of ending. They're all more than a little stoked. Leader feels responsible for Waterboy and Residue and until last night wasn't sure what was going to happen next, or how they were going to get home.

well folks this thread has left me damn near speechless. bottomend,hell of a good job in so many respects, this will come back to you. in addition to helping the hippies, you have renewed some faith in mankind ,here, and i'll bet elsewhere too. thank you for the lesson. this whole group of contributors should get a pat on the back. best luck to the boys.

I sure am going to miss this thread.

Here's a mirror of the movie. don't know if there are bandwidth limits on this server but hey, if there are, first come first served till it's all used up.

Grease,

If you're running OS X, download VLC (video lan client) media player. It plays almost everything you thought you'd never be able to watch (damn windows format content monopoly!) including duroc's wmv movie. If for some reason it doesn't work for you (or you're still not on OS X) I'll go ahead and post it in quicktime format. Just let me know.

You can get VLC media player from:

I'm thinking these guys were meant for this bus, or vice-versa, or something like that. Amazingly, that was exactly how I pictured those guys too. Had no idea there were hard core hippies out there still, least not this young!!! Awesome job with the video, Shark!! Mad Props to you, Grease!! Hope we can keep up to date with these guys as they head East. If Florida was on their itinerary I would definately offer them a place to park and a hot meal or two...might even be able to help with the stash situation... 😊
